Re: Construction at 100 East Eighth Street

Dear Steve,

I am sure that you are well aware of the construction project between THP Engineering and the Archdiocese of Cincinnati. THP Engineering consolidated their space and a renovation package was prepared and executed so that they could move to floors 3 and 4.

This renovation package was designed in a cooperative fashion between THP Limited, their architectural firm, and the Archdiocese of Cincinnati. This whole renovation package was built by Hudepohl Construction with subcontractors selected from Hudepohl Construction's subs, subs that were and have been used by the Archdiocese of Cincinnati, and some were selected by THP Engineering.

The purpose of this letter is to first let you know this project turned out looking very beautiful. It was built with excellent professionalism and great support from your company namely George Riehle.

George brought a special package to this project as the Construction Manager. It isn't the easiest thing to do to work with an engineering firm. George was able to through his professionalism and personality create an atmosphere whereby work was done, it turned out beautiful, and everyone was happy.

This project is one where it can be truly said, it was a win-win situation for all concerned for THP Limited, the Archdiocese of Cincinnati, and for Hudepohl Construction.

George provides an excellent and professional reflection of your company.

Sincerely,

Gary Raffel
Director of Property Management
